Dear hiring manager,

I am applying for the position of Front End Developer at Breakthrough. I would love to be a part of a company that contributes to local charities and has a value of "improving life for the next person." I would be a great fit for this position and your organization because of my love for responsive, minimalist HTML5, CSS3, and JS code and for my love of making things better in this world. I was immediately attracted to Breakthrough when I read "must have a desire to make something bigger, better out of their short time on this earth." This resonates with my values and my goals of starting a children's zone in the city of Syracuse. Moreover, my current skill set as a front-end developer fits well within the scope of the job description. I have learned a great deal about your organization's mission and I am confident that my background and attributes will bring further support of your company's values.

I am a front-end developer with experience using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript to build static websites and interactive web apps with API integration. I enjoy building simple, clean-looking websites and applications that serve a purpose. I have demonstrated skills of implementing website designs into code. I can build, update, and debug efficiently and with code that is easy for others to iterate on.

As a professional, I am a born problem-solver, skilled at prioritizing and managing multiple projects by staying organized and balancing my time. As a team member, I am collaborative, dependable, and willing to offer and receive critical feedback in a way that shows respect to my team while holding high standards for the organization.

My application materials are attached; I look forward to hearing from you about the opportunity to work together.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
BRENT SHARPE
